

EVENING BULLETIN.

TUESDAY EVENING, FEB. 2, 1858.

WASHINGTON REPORTS.—The Administration are in possession of highly important information relative to the situation of Cuba and Spain in regard to Mexico. The ex-convulsion in Mexico will probably result in its disintegration. For a long time it has been in contemplation by Mexican leaders to separate the northern provinces of Mexico from the central government and establish the independent republic of Sierra Madre. The present Governor of Monterey, General Vidauri, a very able and vigorous man, has, it is said, cherished this scheme, and the present is a fit time for carrying it out. If Spain should persist in hostilities against Mexico, it will tend to complicate the whole matter, as far as the United States are concerned. The present Minister of the United States is about to return, having asked and received leave. What may be the policy of the Administration in regard to Mexico is unknown, for in his annual message the President was entirely silent on the subject.

Gen. Scott, according to some statements, has postponed, and, according to others, has reconsidered his purpose of going to California, and the project is definitely relinquished. The intention was predicated on the expectation of Congress authorizing the increase of regiments asked for by the President, so that the force on the Atlantic might be transferred to the Pacific, the vacuum being supplied by new levies. The adverse indications by the vote in the Senate on Friday and the sentiment of the House led to the abandonment of the policy.

The receipts from customs do not materially increase, ranging in New York from $200,000 to $300,000 per week. The government obligations are now chiefly discharged in paper money, Treasury notes. It will not be difficult to get off in this way the six millions of dollars already printed. Three per cent. however is a very small interest, and some difficulty is found in calculating it. It is suggested to adopt a simpler mode, and to make the interest one cent a day on each $100 note, and in proportion for those of larger denominations.

ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH.—A letter from George Seward, Esq., secretary of the Atlantic Telegraph Company, dated London, Jan. 15, says: "Our arrangements here for the completion of the work we have in hand are progressing satisfactorily, and I trust and believe that our next attempt will be crowned with success. The machinery is being overhauled under the direction of British and American engineers, and experiments will be carefully tried before sailing next time, with a view to meet every known and anticipated difficulty. The British Government has again granted us the use of ships, and the manufacture of new cable to supply the place of that which was lost is going on satisfactorily. It is at present intended to take out 2,800 miles of cable, being forty-five miles more than was thought sufficient last time."

NEBRASKA LEGISLATURE.—The Nebraska Legislature have delivered their proceedings by expelling Mr. Robertson, of the Omaha Nebraskan, from the hall where he was acting as reporter. He has, it seems, reviewed the political history of some of the members. One of the gravest charges against him was calling one of the members "a small potato."

We understand that the Florence fragment of the Legislature adjourned on the 17th, upon the arrival of Gov. Richardson, the other wing, at Omaha, is probably still in session.

SIR COLIN CAMPBELL'S ESCAPE.—The Rev. Dr. Duff, in his last letter from India, mentions the following remarkable escape of Sir Colin Campbell on his march to the relief of Lucknow:

Sir Colin and his staff, unaccompanied by any escort, in the neighborhood of the river Soane, came suddenly on two companies of the intrepid 32d, who had recently killed their own officers. They were then in the act of crossing the bank road, with fourteen elephants, two guns, and a small body of sowars, or irregular native cavalry. Sir Colin's gaily, or traveling carriage, was ahead of all the others; and although the native coachman warned him of the danger, he still pushed on, till an aid-de-camp directed his attention to the mutineers crossing the road at a distance of not more than 500 yards.

At first the chief would not go back, but got on the top of his gaily with a glass; and only when he saw some cavalry sent to cut off his retreat did he think it proper to step. Had they been a few hundred yards further on, the whole party must have been cut off to a man, since, having no escort, the odds opposed to them was so tremendous as to render effectual resistance impossible. As it was, their coming up with such apparent boldness, so very near to the rebels, evidently soon impressed the latter with the conviction that Sir Colin and his party formed only the advance guard of an avenging column; and, after a little hesitation, they made off as fast as they could, elephants, guns, and all, while Sir Colin and his staff instantly turned back and retraced their steps for ten miles, till they came up with a bullock-train party of soldiers. What a narrow escape! What a providential interposition! A few minutes sooner, and the brave Sir Colin, with his whole staff, would have been ignominiously butchered.

THE KOSUTH FAMILY IN AMERICA.—A writer in the New York Journal of Commerce, speaking of the Kosuth family in the United States, says:

The daughters of the admirable Madame Mesleni, the Nightingale of the Hungarian war hospitals, have been most generously cared for by Mrs. Cruger, of our city, and, under superior teachers, have grown up to sensible and accomplished womanhood, such as would have rejoiced the spirit of their departed mother, who exclaimed on her death-bed that she could now expire in peace, since her children would be in a better condition than if she had lived.

Friends of Mad. Zulovsky have purchased for her a little farm in New Jersey, where she lives in comfort with her two youngest children. Her second son is quite distinguished as a civil engineer in the West.

The gentle, discreet, and accomplished Madame Ruttipay has established a boarding-school for young ladies at Cornwall, near Newburg, which promises to be highly successful. Her eldest son, a graduate of Union College, is in the engineer department of the navy-yard at Brooklyn; the second is in the navy agency at New York. They are gentlemanly, unexceptionable young men.

CAPT. JOHN TRAVIS.—Porter's Spirit of the Times has the following complimentary notice of this gentleman:

John Travis has established an "institution" at Louisville, Ky., in which to "teach the young idea how to shoot"—pistols. We hear that his gallery is patronized by the most respectable members of the community. He has also established galleries at New Orleans and St. Louis, and will probably open one here in the spring. Having no superior, if he has an equal in this country, it would not be a bad speculation to send him to Europe. There is no chance of his breaking down, or being badly ridden, or dying suddenly of colic, like our American horses in England, than there is of his being struck by lightning.

APPALACHIAN ACCIDENT.—A man slowly Roaded—One of the most shocking accidents it has ever been our lot to record occurred two days since at Mountain Ash, South Wales, to a man named David Thomas, who earned his bread as a lime burner at some lime kilns belonging to the Navigation Coal Company. Having drawn the lower part of the kiln and got out about a cartload of lime, he thought that the burning stones on the top of the perfected kiln did not descend as they ought, and he asked his wife, who happened to be with him at the time, if she would go to the top of the kiln, and inform him whether they had sunk or not.

The wife went to the top as requested, and seeing that the stones had not sunk, but still preserved a level surface, she called out, "they have not moved a bit." He joined her at the kiln, and, taking up a long iron bar which was kept there for the purpose of thrusting among the stones when any hitch occurred, he went toward the mouth of the kiln. His wife begged him to keep back from so dangerous a position, at the same time reminding him that if the stones should sink he would be drawn with them into the kiln. He said, "Oh, never fear; I will take care of that;" and, disregarding his wife's repeated supplication, he stepped forward to the top of the kiln, and commenced thrusting at the stones with his iron bar.

For a few moments the mass remained firm and resisted his attempts to dislodge it, but upon his increasing the violence of his thrusts, they began to descend, and, as his unhappy wife had predicted, to draw him with them. As he descended slowly, the fiery stones closed around him, until at length the lower part of his body became completely embedded in the burning mass. His shrieks were heart-piercing, and his agonized wife endeavored to pull him out. The state of the kiln made this a work of difficulty and of the greatest danger, and when at length she did seize his hand and endeavored to drag him out, she found to her horror that the burnt flesh yielded to her touch and came off in pieces, rendering it impossible for her to obtain any hold.

The horrors of her situation can be better imagined than described. At length her cries attracted the attention of a number of men who were standing near an adjacent colliery, and who lost no time in repairing to the spot, in the hope of being able to render some assistance. It happened that one of Mr. Crawshaw's boys was passing at the time, and the boatman having laid-to to gaze at the accident, a man named Hobbs ran to the boat, seized the boat rope, returned with it to the top of the kiln, and was preparing to throw it around the body of the unhappy Thomas, who was still slowly burning and writhing in the most intense agony, when the boatman, David Jenkins, ran after him and took away the rope, saying it was useless to burn it, as he could let them have an old one!

He deliberately walked back to the boat, leaving the poor sufferer in the midst of the fire, picked out an old piece of rope, threw it to the men on shore, and then went off with his boat, without attempting to offer the slightest assistance. Hobbs, and one or two others, at length contrived to throw the rope around the poor sufferer's body; but, alas! they found that they could not succeed in getting him out. At length some one suggested that an iron bar should be placed under him to lift him out. This was done, and the frightfully charred body of the still living man, some portions of which had been literally burned to cinder, was got out. Of course human strength could not survive such suffering, and he died.

FURTHER CRUELTY TO THE NEGRO GIRL.—On Saturday evening last, about eight o'clock, Officer O'Quigley arrested one of the leeches between Ouse and Olive streets, a naked negro girl, about twenty years of age. Her appearance gave evidence that she had been badly treated. Her back was covered with fresh and bloody stripes, into which salt and flour had been sprinkled to dry them up and prevent suppuration. The officer took her to the police office, where she was furnished with an old blanket to cover her nakedness and wounds. She belonged to Mrs. L. Peters, living on Sixth street, between Franklin avenue and Wash street. She said she had been terribly whipped, and that she was trying to escape from her cruel mistress.

This is the same girl, we believe, whose brutal treatment was recently made the subject of judicial investigation before the criminal court of this city, which resulted in a verdict against Mr. and Mrs. Peters, of $1,000 fine and one year's imprisonment for each, from which judgment they appealed, and are now under bonds of $2,000 each. Since that time they have continued to abuse the girl with as much barbarity as before. The neighbors say that, to keep outsiders from witnessing further cruelties, the cracks of the fence surrounding the yard have been nailed up, and that the girl is now taken down into the cellar out of sight, where she is subjected to punishments and torments equal to any she has previously endured.

By some means she escaped the house, and was looking out doubtless for some chance to get across the river when arrested. We understand from the Anzinger that some of our more benevolent Germans have taken the matter to heart, with the intention of raising the necessary money to purchase the poor creature from her present owners. Public opinion is said to be setting so strongly against them that they will be compelled to give her up if her value in money is offered them.

DEATH OF MAJOR JOHN P. GAINES.—Late advices from Oregon apprise us of the death of Major John P. Gaines, ex-Governor of that Territory. Major Gaines was formerly a citizen of Boone county, Ky. When war was declared to exist with Mexico, he was among the first to volunteer his services to his country. He was commissioned a Major, and with his command promptly proceeded to the scene of strife. Under circumstances which do not reflect even a shadow upon his sagacity or courage, he was taken prisoner by the enemy, and only released in time to share in the closing brilliant exploits of the army under Scott.

In 1847, while absent in Mexico, he was elected to Congress from this (the tenth) district. He served two sessions. In 1850, President Fillmore tendered him the Governorship of Oregon. He accepted the office, and at once made his arrangements to proceed with his family to the scene of his duties. From that time the record of his private life is a mournful one. On the voyage to his new home two lovely and accomplished daughters fell to the yellow fever. Not long after his arrival in Oregon he was doomed to encounter the heaviest of all afflictions to which man is subject—the sudden death of a faithful wife. This stunning event was speedily followed by the death of his son Richard, a young gentleman of engaging manners and great promise. And now the sad record is closed by the announcement of his own decease.

THE WINTER TWENTY YEARS AGO.—We have noticed many comparisons between the years 1837-8 and 1857-8 in financial and monetary matters, but more can be presented in regard to the season. It was then, as now, feared that the winter would much increase the physical suffering among the poorer classes; but the evil was averted by a winter as mild and as pleasant as the present one. Fuel and provisions, such as coal, wood, and flour, fell in price. The records inform us that the month of December, 1837, was very mild and open, no frost in the ground; Christmas pleasant and warm, and so continuing until the end of the year. No snow for sleighing, except on the 10th and 11th of December, and then for but a short time. January, 1838, twenty years ago, was a remarkable winter month; the weather, excepting the last two days, was nearly as mild as an Indian summer. No snow fell during the month, the thermometer averaging at 2 P. M. at forty degrees through the month; and the succeeding months contradicted many wise remarks, such as we often hear, that "a warm winter brings a cold spring," "winter never runs in the sky," &c. February was cold, with little snow, there being fourteen clear days. March had variable, but the temperature averaging a few degrees above that of January. The Hudson river opened and closed three times during the season, the last opening being about the 18th of March. Other rivers opened about the same time.

Boston Transcript.

An old offender was lately brought before a learned justice of the peace of the county of Middlesex, informed his worship that he had, in custody John Simmons, alias Jones, alias Smith. "Very well," said the magistrate, "I will try the two women first; bring in Alice Jones."

SHAMEFUL NEGLIGENCE.—An awful scene was presented this morning to the numerous passers-by—a poor woman lying dead, literally covered with mud and almost in the middle of the Bad-town road, near the Two-Mile House. She was seen there as early as 5 o'clock this morning, yet no one had noticed the Coroner up to the time when the writer saw her. This he learned from Dr. Buchanan, the Coroner, at 8 1/2 o'clock. Such cases should always be reported at once to the officer whose duty it is to dispose of them as the law provides and directs. Another woman was found, in a dying condition, near the body of the one mentioned above, and was taken into the house of Mr. J. Schmidt and properly cared for by him and other neighbors.

A FRIEND TO HUMANITY.

AN EXPENSIVE JOKE.—The day before New Year's two gentlemen, well known among the citizens of Brooklyn as "men of means," named Theodore Polhemus and "P. M. Hunter," met at a saloon in Hudson street, where Polhemus asked Hunter if he was going to make calls on New Year's. Hunter replied that he had intended to make calls, but had no coachman, and in a boasting manner said that he would give five hundred for a good looking coachman, at the same time saying to Polhemus, "Why don't you take the job; you are good looking and would make a splendid coachman." Polhemus acknowledged the compliment, and said he would serve for that sum. Hunter then told him to be on hand at two o'clock the next day ready for service, but demanded that if he failed to perform his agreement he should forfeit a basket of wine. The conditions were agreed to, and they parted.

The next day Mr. Hunter, who resides in Pierrepont street, was at his house about the time agreed upon; with him most of the party who were witnesses to the bet of the day before, anxious to see the denouement. A few moments before two, Hunter reminded the guests of the bet, and remarked that it would be fun if Polhemus did not keep his engagement. A moment afterwards Polhemus was announced, and appeared, whip in hand, ready for service. He asked Hunter where his coach was, when the reply was made that he had none. Polhemus offered his own, stating that he was ready to drive according to agreement. Hunter then excused himself, stating that he would not go out except in his own coach. Polhemus offered to get the best team that could be had in the city, but Hunter still insisted that he would not go out. Upon that Polhemus replied that he supposed his services would not be required.

Hunter replied, "certainly not." "In that case," said Polhemus, "I will take a glass of wine. I came here as a coachman and am now your equal, but shall demand payment for my services according to contract. If I had failed in performing my part of the agreement you would have exacted the penalty, and I now demand the $500 you agreed to give me for my services." Hunter laughed, the wine was drunk, and the company parted.

No suit has been brought for the $500, but it will be paid by Hunter. Both parties are well known as being wealthy. The joke was a dear one to the party making the wager, but, as he is able to stand it, it will do no harm and may tend to make him more cautious in future how he employs coachmen. The proceeds of the sport will be applied to charitable purposes.—Com. Advertiser.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. There is reason to believe that the Cass and Yriarri treaty has totally failed. The Nicaraguan government have not even considered it. They objected to it, as we learn, on the ground that Mr. Yriarri had no authority from Nicaragua to make it. Mr. Yriarri had received credentials from the Nicaraguan government, but none from that of Martinez. Besides, all the other Central American States with which Nicaragua is in alliance are hostile to the treaty, for the reason that it gives the United States a right to protect the transit by military force. The treaty, in fact, gives the United States the right to occupy the Isthmus.

I learn that the President has received a telegraph dispatch from Mr. Calhoun, president of the Leconte convention, which settles the question as to the result of the election on the 4th of January, for State officers and the State Legislature. Mr. Calhoun gives the election to the pro-slavery party. He will ere long be here himself, to explain the facts connected with the matter.

AS ALABAMA CONSTABLE AFTER ET AL.—An Alabama correspondent of the Mobile Advertiser, justly proud of the good things of his native State, writes to that paper as follows:

A certain fat constable in the county of C—w, State of Alabama, once received a writ from a Justice of the Peace, known as Josh M—c. The case was K—vs. D—et al. The good constable, who was more famed for his honesty than literary attainments, was sorely puzzled at et al. So, after keeping the writ for a week, he entered the Justice's office with much anxiety depicted on his countenance, and saluted Squire Josh with this exclamation: "Josh, who's the et al? I've been looking for him all over the county for a week, and I can't find him. I don't believe there's any such man in C—w."

THE "PROPHET'S FAMILY."—A correspondent of the Missouri Republican writes that last summer he was at Nauvoo and conversed with Mr. Bitoman, who is married to Joe Smith's widow. He says:

I sat at the table with the family, consisting of Mr. Bitoman and wife, and three sons of Joe Smith, the eldest about 23 or 24; the second about 20; the third a lad of some 12 or 13 years. From Mr. Bitoman I learned that not one of the family believed in Mormonism, and that his wife, formerly Mrs. Smith, had always been opposed to it, as well as the boys. Mrs. Bitoman is a masculine, intelligent looking lady, of 45 or 47 years. She is a native of New York.

Cool Clearfield Comedies.—As everybody knows, our county jail is a great institution, and occasionally the "boarders" indulge in some rich performance. On Saturday evening, James Curly and Wm. Miller, two well known characters, sentenced to imprisonment, having been allowed the privilege of going into the jail yard, scaled the wall and vanished. Miller left a note, informing the sheriff that he had gone home to attend to some affairs, and that he would be back the next evening. Curly coolly moved around "to see what was going on in town," until about 9 o'clock, when he returned to the jail, and, all the doors being locked, had to rouse the sheriff to get in. On Monday evening Miller also came back.—Clearfield (Pa.) Journal.

LIEUT. A. K. ALLEN SUPPOSED TO BE LOST.—We learn that about two weeks ago Lieut. Allen, with a small party of men, left the Dalles for Fort Simcoe. When they reached the Simcoe mountains there was a severe snow raging, and the men fearing they would not be able to make trip in safety returned, leaving Lieut. Allen to pursue his journey alone. Since then he has not been heard from, and it is supposed he perished on the mountains. He had about $35,000 in cash with him.—Oregonian.

Chinamen Returning.—The bodies of 300 dead Chinamen are now lying on one of our wharves, nicely packed and directed, ready for shipment to their long home in China. The freight money on this lot is $7,500.

A CARD.

We would respectfully call the attention of the public to a MARINE CHRONOMETER placed in our window, showing the time of day, and is entirely of American manufacture, and has been exhibited at the World's Fair in Paris in competition with the best London and French Chronometers, and also at the World's Fair in New York, and in every instance has received the highest premium for unequalled workmanship and correct time-keeping.

To our watch department we have secured the services of Mr. Ed. Holweil, of New York. Mr. Ed. can execute any kind of watch-work fully equal to Jurgensen, Frodsham, Adams, or any of the first London or Swiss makers. In many fine Watches that are broken parts are substituted greatly inferior to the original, the customer paying the full price for a perfect piece of work. The Watch apparently performs well afterward for a while, but is more imperfect and less valuable than originally. JOHN KITT'S & CO. j19 j&b

Dear Sir: I have tried your Pectoral in a well-marked and severe case of pulmonary consumption, accompanied with severe hemorrhage from the lungs, in which Cod Liver Oil totally failed to produce any beneficial effect, and I was perfectly astonished at the immediate relief and diminution in the amount of expectoration which speedily followed its use. As a remedy in the advanced stages of consumption I give it most decidedly the preference.

XXXVIII CONGRESS—FIRST SESSION.

Monday's Proceedings.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.

Senate.—Mr. Doolittle presented a petition from 97 citizens of the United States, praying that measures may be taken for the purchase of the Island of Cuba and its annexation to this country.

Mr. Collamer introduced a bill to alter the times to hold the district court in Vermont.

The consideration of the army bill was resumed. Mr. Houston opposed it; he saw no necessity for a large standing army; he said it was contrary to the theory of our government.

One o'clock was the hour for the consideration of the Pacific railroad bill, but Mr. Houston was allowed to continue by unanimous consent.

He advocated the raising of soldiers to meet all necessities and emergencies, saying they were not more expensive than regular troops, and were decidedly more preferable. Four additional regiments were raised some years ago, the expense of which was probably something like the twenty millions now deficient in the Treasury. What have they done but killed a few Indian warriors and many women and children? Such conduct reflects little credit upon civilization. Better treat the Indians like men and elevate them rather than drive, rob, and hunt them down like savages. Do justice to them, and you will need no standing armies on the frontiers.

Mr. Wilson gave notice of an amendment to the army bill in the form of a substitute in effect for the present, for the purpose of enforcing the laws of the United States, maintaining peace with the Indian tribes, and protecting citizens on routes of emigration to Utah; to be applied only in said territories; the services of volunteers to be called for and accepted for a number not exceeding five thousand officers and men, to serve twelve months, unless previously discharged, and appropriating—dollars for the purpose of carrying out its provisions.

The further consideration of the bill was postponed till to-morrow.

Douglas moved that the Senate take up the bill providing for the admission of Minnesota into the Union, saying that he was in favor of the Pacific railroad bill. He thought that the question in regard to allowing Senators from new States to take seats ought to take precedence over other business.

The Pacific railroad bill was a measure in which gentlemen were deeply interested.

Mr. Green said that there were several considerations which must necessarily be brought up, when the Minnesota bill shall be brought up. The question of representation would depend upon questions of fact not yet decided. All returns of the census are not yet received. The bill would therefore be prejudicial by prematurely considering it.

Mr. Crittenden thought that respect for Minnesota and the two gentlemen selected to represent her on this floor made it a primary duty of the Senate to consider the subject as to whether they had a right to take seats and to be heard on the Pacific Railroad bill.

Mr. Seward was in favor of the Pacific Railroad bill, but should be obliged to vote against taking it up at this time. He believed with Mr. Crittenden that the Minnesota Senators ought to be allowed to take seats, but it would give an increased vote in favor of the Pacific Railroad, and he was afraid there would not be strength enough to carry it without them.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, a member of the Committee on Territories, objected to taking up the Minnesota bill, not having had an opportunity to read the bill in consequence of sickness.

Mr. Wilson did not want a collision between the two measures. He thought that the reason assigned by Mr. Fitzpatrick was sufficient for a postponement of the Minnesota bill.

Mr. Mason said that there might be circumstances under which it would be found necessary for the Southern States, in order to determine where they stand in the Union, to take up the Minnesota questions together.

Mr. Wilson spoke of the injustice of such conjectures, and gave notice that he and his friends would avail themselves of all legislative means to resist the admission of Kansas into the Union under the Lecompton constitution.

Mr. Hale said there had never been a proposition so seriously threatening the disruption of the Union as that of the Senator from Virginia. It is contrary to the genius of our institutions.

Mr. Crittenden opposed the connection of the two subjects and made an eloquent Union speech, eliciting applause from the gallery. Without taking the question the Senate adjourned.

House.—The House engaged in discussing a bill to supply an accidental omission in the army bill of last session, making an appropriation for the support of the National armories.

Mr. Starn offered a preamble setting forth that J. B. Williamson, of New York city, was on the 27th of January duly summoned, but refused to appear before the committee appointed to investigate charges against officers and members of the army, growing out of the expenditures of Lawrence, Stone, & Co., to influence the passage of the tariff bill of 1857, and concluded with a resolution that the speaker issue his warrant directing the sergeant-at-arms to take into custody the said Williamson, whenever found, and bring him before the bar of this House to answer for contempt of its authority.

Mr. Stanton caused to be read a letter from Williamson, in which he respectfully declined to appear before the committee for reasons which his attorney advised him were sufficient for his not leaving New York.

The resolution was adopted.

The bill passed appropriates three hundred thousand dollars for that purpose.

Mr. Boyce offered a resolution, which was passed, providing for the appointment of a select committee of seven who shall inquire into and report on the following subjects: Reduction in the expenses of the government; an organization of the navigation laws of the U. S. in regard to existing duties on imports, and the expediency of a gradual repeal of all duties on imports and resort exclusively to internal taxation.

The House resumed the consideration of the army deficiency bill, but the committee rose without any action.

Mr. Lamar presented the State Constitution of Oregon, which was referred to the Committee on Territories.

Mr. Parrot asked leave to present certain joint resolutions of the Kansas Legislature, with a view to have them laid on the table and printed. [Impetuous exclamations—"What are they? Read! Read!"]

Mr. Craig objected and raised the question that the papers could not be read.

The Speaker said that the question was whether they should be received.

Mr. Craig appealed from the decision of the chair. Much confusion occurred during these proceedings. Mr. Washburn, of Ill., moved to lay the appeal on the table. Carried.

The resolutions were read. They strongly censure the Lecompton Convention, and the odious and oppressive party machinery of law under which the delegation was assembled, saying that the Convention repudiated and crushed out the distinctive principle of the Kansas-Nebraska act, which leaves the people free to legislate on the subject of their domestic institutions in their own way, but at every stage they have been prevented from so doing. The resolutions strongly protest against the admission of Kansas into the Union under the Lecompton Constitution, as violating the rights of the people of the territory.

A second series of resolutions from the Kansas Legislature were read, asking that Kansas be received into the Union under the Lecompton Constitution, and saying that the first Legislature was seized on by fraud and violence, revolting to a large majority to a large majority of the votes of the territory.

The resolutions were laid on the table, and ordered to be printed. Adjourned.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Pennsylvania Bank met this afternoon. A report, presenting a desperate condition of affairs, was submitted. Among the collateral notes of a firm, of which President Allibone's brother was a member, for $130,000, having been discounted by the directors. Mr. Allibone's brother was the assignee of this debt. Notes of the Pennsylvania Bank for $230,000 were also among the collateral notes, unauthorized by the directors. The report recommends an assignment. Resolutions for this purpose were postponed until next week.

Boston, Feb. 1.
F. Skinner & Co. and J. C. Howe & Co., two of the largest mercantile houses in this city, which suspended in October last, to-day resumed payment in full.

Washington, Feb. 1.
The Cabinet met in extraordinary council this morning, having for the first time an authenticated copy of the Lecompton Constitution before them. The President's special message to accompany his transmission to Congress is already prepared but may not be communicated till to-morrow.

About fifty Missourians, temporarily in Washington, this morning paid a visit of courtesy to the President, who for a short time absented himself from the Cabinet to give them audience.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 1.
John W. Seymour, the Secretary and Treasurer of the Hartford County Savings Institution, suddenly left town on Saturday. It is now reported that a defalcation of $100,000 or more has been discovered in his accounts. The money was lost in stock and other speculations.

Mr. Seymour was also President of the Mercantile Bank, which, it is said, does not lose a dollar.

New York, Feb. 1.
The weekly bank statement shows an increase in loans of $170,000—decrease in specie $440,000—decrease in circulation $33,000—decrease in nominal deposits $1,399,000—decrease of undrawn deposits $931,000.

The telegraph brings a report from Washington, based on the Herald's letters, that the President is about withdrawing the army from Utah, the Mormons, through their delegate in Congress, having made overtures that they will leave the United States, provided the Government will indemnify them for their improvements in Salt Lake. The President has no right to enter into any such arrangement without the authority of Congress. We have no doubt of the total falsity of the report.

XXXVIII CONGRESS—FIRST SESSION.
Tuesday's Proceedings.

Washington, Feb. 2.
Senate.—Mr. Wilson presented the memorial of T. R. Livingston, of Miss., to be appointed to succeed and aid in the preparation of the catalogue, abstract, and index of the original documents and papers of the United States.

House.—Mr. Harris of Illinois gave notice that he would to-morrow move to take up the contested election case of Vallandigham against Campbell in order to dispose of the preliminary questions involved.

The House resumed the consideration of the Printing Deficiency bill.

New York, Feb. 2.
Horace Greeley publishes a card this morning to the effect that he had recently been never harassed or suspected that Lawrence, Stone, & Co., or anybody else, paid or promised any money whatever to members of Congress at Washington to editors in New York or to anybody else to procure a change in the tariff act. Mr. Greeley adds: "If said committee supposes I can shed any light on the matter I am very respectfully at their service."

The Herald's Washington correspondent under date of the 1st says: "It is reported to me on good authority that Mr. Buchanan contemplates withdrawing the troops from Utah. Mr. Bernhard, the Mormon delegate, has submitted propositions to the Administration indicating the willingness of the Mormons to vacate Utah and colonies on some of the islands of the sea outside of the jurisdiction of the United States; provided, the government will purchase at a fair valuation the Salt Lake City improvements. Mr. B. asks that commissioners be sent out to arrange terms and details."

The Administration confidently expect that Kansas will be admitted as a State with the Lecompton constitution and that there will be less opposition from Northern and Western Democratic members than was generally supposed. Great calculations are made on the consolidated vote of the South. It is understood that the Lecompton constitution will be referred to the territorial committee in the Senate and may be reported upon with the bill for the admission of Minnesota attached, and that they will be passed together.

"Similar arrangements have been made in the House. An exciting time is anticipated in both Houses to-day."

The Tribune's correspondent says the statement in the Herald about the tariff investigation committee is a mere fabrication made from conjectures and floating rumors. There is nothing in Mr. Stone's testimony which implicates Mr. Banks in the least. The Herald's $7,000 is the old affair of the $700 loan magnified ten fold.

New Orleans, Feb. 1.
Gen. Walker appeared in the U. S. District Court this morning. Judge McCabe said there was nothing against him, the grand jury having refused to find a verdict. Walker is anxious to be put upon trial for violation of the neutrality laws. The judge refused, and the district attorney said there was nothing against Walker unless new instructions are received from Washington.

On Sunday morning there was a large fire, consuming Magazine Market and adjacent stores. Loss over $50,000. Another fire took place this morning on Canal street, which was mostly covered by insurance. It is supposed both were the work of incendiaries.
